Dynamical systems theory is an area of mathematics used to describe the behavior of the complex dynamical systems, usually by employing differential equations or difference equations. When differential equations are employed, the theory is called continuous dynamical systems. From a physical point of view, continuous dynamical systems is a generalization of classical mechanics, a generalization ...

I create most of the animations programmatically, using a python library named "manim" that I've been building up. I've also used Grapher for a number of 3d animations. Everything is open-source on github, and a small community has emerged of people who use it, but before you dive in I feel like a warning is in order.
